Double success for the Grand Hotel Zermatterhof:

17 points for Prato Borni and 14 points for Brasserie Lusi

Zermatt, 6. October 2026 – The Grand Hotel Zermatterhof has two reasons to celebrate: the GaultMillau Guide Switzerland 2027, published on 5 October, recognises the work of Executive Chef Stefan Lünse and his team with higher ratings for both restaurants. Alpine Gourmet Prato Borni has been awarded 17 points, while Brasserie Lusi rises to 14 points. Both restaurants have gained one point.

With this distinction, Prato Borni ranks among the region's leading gourmet destinations. It is one of just three restaurants in Zermatt and six across the canton of Valais to receive a rating of exactly 17 points in the new guide.

Brasserie Lusi has also impressed the GaultMillau inspectors, earning a new rating of 14 points.

Two restaurants, one shared passion

Stefan Lünse has been responsible for the culinary direction of the Grand Hotel Zermatterhof since May 2025. Originally from Germany, he brings more than two decades of experience in fine dining. During his longstanding tenure as Head Chef at the Relais & Châteaux Lenkerhof Gourmet SPA Resort, he led Spettacolo to 16 GaultMillau points and Oh de Vie to 14 points. His previous roles also include renowned establishments such as Kempinski St. Moritz and Hotel Giardino Ascona.

At the Zermatterhof, Lünse continues to develop his vision of modern cuisine that combines a grounded approach with innovation, working closely with his team. The two higher ratings highlight both the quality of their work and the diversity of the hotel's culinary experiences.

"We are very proud of these two distinctions and would like to thank Stefan Lünse and his entire kitchen team for their passion, dedication and commitment to the highest standards. Our thanks also go to our service teams, producers and partners, as well as our guests for the trust they place in us," says the Grand Hotel Zermatterhof.
